

ABSTRACT

Embodiments of the invention may be used to select targeted advertisements for insertion into a program being rendered on a rendering device in a home area network. The selection of the advertisement may be based on a profile associated with that particular rendering device. In other embodiments, the profile associated with a rendering device in a home area network is updated based on an identification that the rendering device is active and based on the program being rendered on the active rendering device.